To Whom It May Concern:

Wow! That is how I would describe Craig Means' ability to entertain for special events and keep a crowd engaged.

We had the opportunity to book Craig and two of his associates for a "Back to School" activity in August and it was a smashing success. The particular day that we booked them was also the day of freshman move-in and by the time the students and parents alike arrived at the student union, you can only imagine how tired they were.

This magical trio started out in the University Bookstore and entertained everyone standing in line to check-out and kept them happy and involved during the process. They then moved to the lobby area of the student union and then later to the dining hall to entertain during dinner.

You could almost liken them to "Pied Pipers" as they had groups following them all over the building to see what they might do next. This was truly a great activity that was enjoyed immensely by not only our students but by their parents as well.

Sincerely,
